B. VASUDEVA RAO,
Head Master and Secretary.

OFFICE OF THE REVENUE COMMISSIONER IN MYSORE, BANGALORE.

Circular No. R. Dis. 27—30-31, dated 6th November 1930.

As many tanks are rapidly getting silted up, it is necessary that suitable steps should be promptly taken to prevent further damage. The most effective of such measures is said to be the planting of a belt of honge trees in the contour of tanks. If 4 to 6 rows of such trees are planted in a zig-zag manner so as to check the flow of silt without hindrance to the inflow of water, the tanks are likely to be protected to a material extent from further damage.

2. In Government Order No. 2615-22—F. 282, dated 2nd August 1880 (vide Article 384 of the Revenue Manual), general instructions have been issued in this matter. But, much progress does not appear to have been so far made and it is not likely to be made unless continuous attention is paid to the work in a systematic manner according to a programme, till the desired result is achieved. A definite number of tanks should first be selected for this treatment. The area of planting should be marked out.

3. It is desirable to interest the Village Panchayet in the work as it would not be proper to create any individual right therein. The Village Panchayets may perhaps be authorised to incur a small expenditure for the purpose. They may be permitted to utilise the income therefrom. The Deputy Commissioners are requested to give their best consideration to this very important subject, select a fair number of tanks in each Taluk for the purpose and advice the Village Panchayets concerned to take suitable action on a well-defined programme. The progress of work under this head should be carefully watched and a report on the progress achieved should be sent up at the end of June 1931.

S. P. RAJAGOPALACHARI,
Revenue Commissioner.
